Amy Savage is passionate about helping people on their inner journey toward reaching their potential and making a positive and lasting impact at work and in the world. Her personal values of 'people, growth, vulnerability, courage, and service drive her work and are the main fabric of her life.

Amy can be found facilitating online and in-person transformational leadership experiences, coaching, and managing client relationships. Whether she's working with Fortune 100 companies or non-profits, Amy's relational approach helps enable leaders' insight, growth, and continued leadership development.

She brings to the FlashPoint team over two decades of deep experience in leadership development. Beginning her career at Tom Peters Company, Amy went on to found and manage Fine Points Leadership for 16 years, helping to develop over 40,000 leaders globally through the LPI®: Leadership Practices Inventory® and The Leadership Challenge®. She's developed leaders in a variety of industries, including healthcare, finance, education, technology, government, and the non-profit sector.

After work hours, Amy loves exploring the beautiful Rocky Mountains on the weekends with her husband and her three children. She loves hosting and is a big believer that inviting people for a meal around a table breaks down barriers and encourages openness and authenticity. She loves traveling the world and has a soft spot in her heart for Ethiopia, the country where she adopted her son. Amy is passionate about ending the global dirty water crisis and volunteers her time doing advocacy work through Charity:Water.
