A former Fortune 500 Executive Vice President, John is uniquely positioned to help others learn, grow, and leverage their strengths. During his career, he worked closely with executives at companies like AT&T, T-Mobile, Sprint, Sony, Netflix, Samsung, Target, and Microsoft. Throughout his career, John has demonstrated an ability to understand business challenges and craft creative business solutions with a track record of driving top-line growth.

John holds a Master of Science degree in Learning and Organizational Change from Northwestern University, where he also earned his Executive Coaching Credential and a graduate Certificate in Leading Equity and Inclusion in Organizations. This, combined with his corporate experience, makes him a highly effective partner to his clients.

A serial entrepreneur, John has launched two consultancies and two restaurants. He is married, the proud father of three wonderful children, and an avid musician. At his core, John believes happiness comes from helping others succeed personally and professionally.
